ABOUT THE CENTER FOR RUSSIAN, EAST EUROPEAN, & EURASIAN STUDIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN

The Center for Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies at UT Austin offers educational and research opportunities focused on the languages, cultures, histories, and politics of the region. We are actively engaged in K-16 outreach, as well as the coordination of campus and community events.

The U.S. Department of Education designated The University of Texas as a National Resource Center for Russian and East European Studies in 1988.

CREEES has a firm commitment to developing campus resources and courses that will give students the training they need to participate in an international arena in which Russia, Eastern Europe and Eurasia play a key role. By highlighting an interdisciplinary course of study and by offering a degree plan that is not limited by traditional disciplinary boundaries, CREEES can respond to political and private sector demands for integrated studies that include both academic study and professional training.

The Center for Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies (formerly Post-Soviet and East European Studies) was established in 1984 at The University of Texas at Austin and now includes over 80 faculty members from over 20 different departments and administrative units across campus. CREEES is committed to reaching out to the campus community, as well as the broader region, to provide access to speakers from Russia, Eastern Europe and Eurasia, and activities that will promote interest in the region. As part of the largest university in the state of Texas, CREEES has a special responsibility to support continued international development and to educate students that can play a fundamental role in an international community in which Russia, Eastern Europe and Eurasia are critical players.
